Gentlemen,

Your letter regarding the lot of Spanish silver coins received. The coins you refer to are common and the small size pieces no sale for at all as Numismatic specimens. Such a quantity would be very difficult to market and do not believe you could sell them aside from silver. We have quite a few of them and would not want to add such a quantity to our stock as it is too difficult to move.

Have just called up a Broker who deals in silver and he informs me the 8 real or dollar size pieces would bring approximately 40c to 45c. each and the smaller pieces approximately.

If we can give you any further advice, shall be glad to do so.

Yours very truly,
